ADAMSKI SCOUTSHIP LANDING AT BEXLEYHEATH

In Link to the Stars, by UFO investigator Margaret Fry, the author describes her first UFO sighting (one of over fifty that occurred subsequently) when a craft of the same description as those photographed by George Adamski landed on a crossroads at Bexleyheath, where she was then living.

It was July 17th, 1955, there was a heatwave on, and a doctor had been called to her son who had developed a temperature. He diagnosed sunstroke, and said he should take him to the surgery for medication. So the doctor was driving Margaret and two of her children through the town and they became aware of a shadow over the car. They turned right and the shadow followed. The car engine spluttered and stopped, they got out and found an oval cloudy mass above them. It seemed to solidify and three ball-like structures extended from the bottom and then retracted. Then it flipped on its side, righted itself and landed at a nearby crossroads.

It was a domed, bell-shaped craft and had indents that could have been portholes in the wide band below the upper dome, and the lower part appeared to have seams. It stayed still for five minutes, then tilted forward and ascended with a wobbling motion. Then a porthole opened, after which it continued to rise to high altitude, taking about seven minutes to disappear. There was no downdraught from the craft. Some children playing hopscotch on the pavement were called and saw everything. The Kentish Times newspaper later reported that a policeman in Erith had seen an object of the same description on the same date, shortly after midday when it had left Bexleyheath.

Her father, a scientist at Aldermaston atomic energy centre, had insisted that she had only seen the sun, but he was present at her second sighting of a similar craft (though she had seen a number of other different UFOs in the intervening time). They were waiting to cross a busy road in Erith when a craft exactly like the first came over, skimming the rooftops. Her father was agitated, and told her not to mention it to anyone.

By a strange coincidence, in the 1960s she learned that the man who was to become her cousin's fiancé, had also seen a UFO on the same day as the first sighting, from Meopham, not far away. He was walking his dog across a field when he saw a cigar-shaped object low over him with portholes which appeared to be frosted glass with shadowy figures behind. He did not see it leave as he ran into his house.

Amazingly, in 2002 she learned that there had been another landing in Bexleyheath on the same day. This craft, although disc-shaped, was not of the Adamski type. It was a black craft that spanned the road, with a narrower more tapering top, oval lights round the base and emitting flashes of light. It wobbled as it took off, then stabilised and hovered over Bedonwell Junior School for two hours. It was seen by about ninety people, including a group of teenagers working on a water culvert, and some children and other residents from the street.

After her first sighting in 1955 she had had an attack of paralysis when she had awoken unable to move. The doctor who was called thought it was polio, but it only lasted a short time and she recovered. She was reminded of this when the investigations in 2005 turned up another sighting in Bexleyheath from August 1952 (just before Adamski's contact). This was of a hat-shaped craft twenty feet from the ground; the witness had an attack of paralysis in his lower limbs, also thought to be polio, but from which he shortly recovered. George Adamski himself had an accident getting an arm under the flange of the hovering scoutship; Orthon grabbed his arm but did not manage to be quick enough to entirely prevent harm; the arm was numbed for some time afterwards.

She describes a number of sightings in her books of craft of the Adamski type; her book Who Are They? describes one in Wales in the 1960s involving missing time and seeming like an abduction. It was on a road known to locals as a place of paranormal happenings. The witness was walking down this road when the craft appeared low and was swaying like a falling leaf. He was alarmed and flagged down a passing wagon, which he found was being driven by a friend of his. He pointed out the craft, both yelled in fear and the next thing they knew it was dark and they were near a crossroads several miles on where another abduction apparently took place in 1979. A month later he had a painful, itching rash. Years later he had a regression which seemed to indicate that he was taken into the craft and the occupants were human-type, but gave him the usual type of medical examination and conversed telepathically. The other one at that crossroads did not involve an Adamski craft; it had missing time but the "grey" type of alien.

Major Hans Petersen, a co-worker of Adamski, wrote a booklet in which he claimed that the abduction experiences were induced hallucinations deliberately caused by American psychotronic devices to make people afraid of extraterrestrials, and the occurrences were often near military bases. There was apparently a secret military base near the crossroads described in the above cases.

The Citizen's Hearing on Disclosure at Washington DC April 29th to 3rd May 2013

While not an official government hearing on UFOs, the CHD was a five-day congressional-style presentation that brought 40 international researchers and military and scientific witnesses who were testifying before six former members of Congress.

On day one, discussions included the history of global UFO sightings and alleged UFO crashes, like the famous 1947 incident near Roswell, New Mexico. There was also testimony of how several previous American presidents showed great interest in UFOs and, in some cases, unsuccessfully attempted to get information about specific UFO issues. Cong. Kilpatrick: "I don't know if the answer is to have another congressional hearing. I agree that coming together to acknowledge this problem is urgent. Will the Air Force ever come to this point, and what can this issue do to help all of us."

French: "Something's got to be done."

Sheehan: "The altering of consciousness about UFOs will have to come through religious institutions."

Dolan: "If there's an energy paradigm solution to UFOs, that's worth everything we can do to get it all out in the open."

Sen. Gravel: "Could all of you draft a new U.N.-type proposal by the end of this week that can help us become globalists vs. nationalists?"

Cong. Bartlett: "Whether there are UFOs or extraterrestrials is not the issue -- it's a constitutional issue more than anything else. In his final public speech as he left office, Eisenhower warned the public against the military industrial complex, but his original speech called it the military industrial congressional complex, but he took out the word congressional. I think Congress owes the American people a hearing on this subject. There may be nothing to UFOs, but you have the right to petition the government about it."

The UFO History Panel started with the "Sirius" Documentary, Exec. Prod. Steven Greer.

Dr. Greer began the afternoon session describing how he went from being an emergency room doctor to a leading advocate for UFO-ET disclosure. Greer is executive producer of a new documentary, "Sirius", which focuses on his claims of alleged existing technologies that might change the world. "Sirius" is also about the unveiling of DNA analysis of a 6-inch-tall humanoid discovered 10 years ago in the Atacama Desert of Chile. Dubbed Ata, there is ongoing controversy as to its origin and what, exactly the DNA reveals, according to a new report by Greer.

Researcher Grant Cameron discussed 1,000 documents he received via the Freedom of Information Act about how philanthropist Laurance Rockefeller tried to get the Clinton administration to look into UFOs, especially the 1947 UFO crash in Roswell, New Mexico, and how President Clinton issued a challenge, saying if there was a UFO at Roswell, he was never told about it. Cameron talked about how Bill and Hillary Clinton met with Rockefeller at his ranch to discuss UFOs. There are key documents from 1995 that point out how Hillary and her staff helped draft a UFO disclosure letter that would be sent to the president. However, the administration's attempt to find out UFO information was unsuccessful.

Linda Moulton Howe spoke on reported UFO abductions and the possible manipulation of the human mind. She tells a story about a military person who told her he was on a team that, in 1978, was assigned to investigate a town that was allegedly flooded by extraterrestrials.

Dr. Steven Greer: "Everything about what extraterrestrials show of themselves would look like magictous; if you're dealing with civilizations that have actually arrived here from somewhere else, they're probably doing it faster than the speed of light - possibly at the speed of thought. Consciousness and mind are the real final frontier, not space. We are not alone in the universe and we need to have a peaceful interplanetary, interstellar initiative. We need to figure out how we're going to advance."

Political activist Stephen Bassett talked about how the media hasn't properly reported important UFO news. "If some very tough reporters can get out there and ask the right questions, it's going to get really interesting."

Many points of view from committee members and witnesses were offered on this first day of the Citizen Hearing On Disclosure.

As day two of the Citizen Hearing On Disclosure unfolded, the committee of former members of Congress listened to the testimony of eyewitnesses to the famous 1980 Rendlesham Forest incident in England that involved many military personnel. Panelists Nick Pope, James Penniston, John Burroughs and Patrick Frascogna gave testimony on the 1980 multiple military eyewitness UFO encounters in the U.K. Rendlesham Forest, at the dual air base RAF Woodbridge and Bentwaters.

Cong. Roscoe Bartlett engaged Sgt. James Penniston about the UFO he approached on the ground during the 1980 multiple witness encounter in England's Rendlesham Forest:

Bartlett: "You were there when the craft took off?"

Penniston: "Yes, sir."

Bartlett: "Was there any sound?"

Penniston: "The craft generated more lighting and that concerned me. I wasn't sure if it was going to explode, so I took a somewhat defensive position. It rose off the ground, went to tree level, momentary hovered, then took off in the blink of an eye. The things that it didn't do was stuff that it should've done. I was hoping for air displacement - all aircraft do that. I was hoping for aircraft sound - all aircraft do that."

The afternoon session focussed on the numerous cases of UFOs seen in the vicinity of American nuclear missile sites. One of the witnesses, retired Air Force Capt. Bruce Fenstermacher described seeing a cigar-shaped UFO above a Wyoming nuclear base in 1976. UFO historian Richard Dolan talked about how the Freedom of Information Act has yielded important documents related to military encounters with UFOs.

Cong. Roscoe Bartlett read an article that called former members of Congress an 'Alien Panel'. He got a little testy about the press coverage so far about the Citizen Hearing On Disclosure:

"I've been looking at some of the press clippings from yesterday's session and the government has been quite successful in relegating this issue to the lunatic fringe. I'm going to comment on only one article. It says 'The mock Congress hearing on aliens is heavy on real-life Mulders and not Scullys. In the "X-Files," Agent Mulder believes in all things: little green men, Roswell, men-in-black, whatever, and Agent Dana Scully believes in science.

"Scully forces Mulder to find hard evidence that there's a massive conspiracy to cover-up aliens' existence. The trouble with this week's alien panel (we're an alien panel now) at the National Press Club is that any of the participating members of Congress who might naturally be a Scully have been incentivized to suspend their disbelief. Because the Citizen Hearing foundation is paying them $20,000 plus expenses to listen to the testimony.' That's just insulting, that we can be bought for $20,000 -- that's ridiculous! It goes on to say that ... 'former member Roscoe Bartlett, in an opening statement, Bartlett said he hadn't fulfilled his duty in office by failing to hold hearings on extraterrestrials...' I NEVER SAID THAT! ... I never said that I believed in extraterrestrials. I believe that there are sightings out there that cannot be easily explained away. Compounding the problem of eyebrow-raising testimony is that several of these politicians have reputations for being a little wacky."

Winding up the second day of the CHD there were evening lectures from former nuclear physicist Stanton Friedman, Canadian researcher Grant Cameron and UFO historian Richard Dolan.

Day 3 testimony got started with testimony on animal mutilations. Researcher Linda Moulton Howe discussed her many years investigating strange animal mutilations that have been linked to UFO sightings.

"The first global media report about this phenomena was in September of 1967 when a female horse named Lady was found dead on a ranch in southern Colorado. The horse's entire skull and long neck had been stripped of flesh and every organ in the chest of that horse had been surgically excised, according to a medical doctor. There was no blood anywhere - not in the animal, not around the animal and nowhere nearby."

The second panel of the day, comprised of Grant Cameron, Stanton Friedman, Linda Moulton Howe and Robert Wood. They presented testimony on a series of documents, known as "Majestic," that reportedly reveal the story of presidential and military authorization and cover-up of UFOs and possible alien occupants. Wood, retired from a 43-year career at McDonnell Douglas Aerospace Corp., has spent more than 30 years investigating UFOs, including years of research to authenticate

the Majestic Documents:

"The identification of one aspect of a questioned document as being anomalous often results in a skeptic accepting none of the rest of the document, even though it might be filled with accurate information. It seems to be accepted in the intelligence community that faked documents usually - if not often - contain much valid information to help get it accepted as genuine throughout.

"The conclusion I've come to is incredibly wild: that those in charge have been successful in keeping secret the greatest story of mankind while covertly spending staggering sums to create hidden underground resources and reverse-engineer the technology. Until we can quantify the alien threat, how can we know whether these actions are good or bad? Let us hope, maybe with the help of one race of good aliens, that God will maybe do the right thing... I think the American people deserve the truth - we've paid for it."

Several people made up the panel offering testimony about the events surrounding the 1947 crash of an alleged UFO outside the town of Roswell, N.M. The panel consisted of Denise Marcell, Jesse Marcel III, Col./Dr. Jesse Marcel Jr., Ret. USAR Lt. Col. Kevin Randle, former nuclear physicist Stanton T. Friedman and researcher/author Donald Schmitt.

Marcel Jr. has a distinguished career as both a Navy and National Guard officer as well as being a military flight surgeon. He told the Washington CHD committee about the night in 1947 (while he was 11 years old) when his father Jesse Marcel, the intelligence officer from the Roswell Army Air Field, came home with debris of whatever the object was that crashed on a nearby ranch: "I was awakened by my dad who was returning from an assignment to collect debris of unknown origin from a ranch out of Roswell. Knowing that he had seen something very special, he wanted my mother and myself to look at this also and said, 'You'll never see this again.' He brought us into the kitchen where there was this strange debris on the kitchen floor that he had pre-positioned. He said, 'Look at this -- I think this is what you call a flying saucer or remains thereof.' The debris consisted of three components: there was a very tough metallic foil; there was black plastic debris, like a broken phonograph record; but the strangest thing I saw was an I-beam in the wreckage. There were symbols written along the inside surface of it. They were of a purplish-violet hue, semi-reflective of light."

Marcel Jr. went on to recount how his father was subsequently ordered to fly the material to Gen. Roger Ramey's office in Fort Worth, Texas. "When my dad got home, he sat my mother and myself down and said, 'You will never talk about this - this is a non-event.' I never discussed this with my friends or anybody else until Stanton Friedman interviewed my dad in 1978."

USAF Ret. Lt. Col. Richard French told the committee about an incident he witnessed in the late 1960s in Alamogordo, N.M., to complete his annual refresher course in an altitude chamber, which tested the effects of high altitude on humans.

"While there, I learned of an accident a few miles away in the direction of White Sands [missile range]. A short time later, I witnessed the takeoff of a prototype fighter aircraft that I neither recognized or knew what it was. The aircraft took off at a very high rate of speed and fired a rocket, five inches in diameter and about six feet long, about the same size as some of the modern air-to-air aerial rockets. Afterward [I was told] there was an unknown number of humanoids, either killed or injured. The parts of the casualties were taken to base operations at Holloman Air Force Base [in New Mexico]. The only parts of the craft that I was allowed to see had markings that appeared to be Arabic or some language I didn't understand.

"Later I learned the parts and the casualties were transported to Wright-Patterson Air Force Base [in Ohio] and turned over to the Foreign Technology Division."

Committee member Sen. Mike Gravel thought Day 4 of the Citizen Hearing On Disclosure would be significant as it would offer international testimony of the UFO subject. "I think that the best effort we have for bringing visibility to the people of the world of this issue ... we could go to the United Nations. Now, I don't think we'd have a prayer in the Security Council, because it's controlled by us and that just wouldn't happen. But what would happen in the General Assembly if we were to introduce a resolution? I'll bet you it would pass. They would fund some part of it - the rest of the funding could come from private sources, and we would have the most awe-inspiring world event on this subject within a couple or three years."

Day 4 went global with testimony of international UFO encounters. It was being presented by several officials and military personnel from different countries, including Brazil, Uruguay, Peru and Argentina. Some technical glitches in the audio translation of several individuals made it difficult to understand what they were actually saying.

In the first panel session of the day, former Brazilian chemistry teacher A.J. Gevaerd spoke on the many UFO cases in Brazil, specifically in the area of the Amazon. He described a committee in 1977 created by the Brazilian air force to investigate the cases. The committee was known as Operation Saucer. Gevaerd presented the committee with a 440-page report called "UFOs In The Amazon".

Possibly the most intriguing testimony came from a former 25-year Peruvian air force fighter pilot, Col. Oscar Santa-Maria. In 1980, he was ordered to takeoff and shoot down a sphere-shaped UFO that was in restricted airspace near an air base. The encounter lasted more than 20 minutes. "These were 22 minutes where we went up and down, it went around, and it was trying to avoid me while I was pursuing it and I was trying to fire. When I first fired, these were bursts of 30 millimeter shells - a single one can destroy a truck. And I shot 64, a barrage of fire, and nothing happened at all, and that's what was so surprising. The possibility of NOT hitting my target was practically impossible. I've won awards for marksmanship, and that's why they sent me up there to chase this thing. The possibility of my missing it was zero."

The object Santa-Maria was chasing was about 30 feet in diameter with a dome on top, no visible engine, wings or windows. He told the committee he tried to figure out how to better attack the unknown craft.

"I tried different positions. When it went up, it had supersonic speed. When I moved to the side of the UFO at 1.3 Mach, it stopped, and then, in a matter of seconds, it achieved 1.2 Mach without any engines! This is something that nobody, no craft can do, to just go from zero to 1.2 Mach, vertically, to reach my same position -- it was able to anticipate my moves and then follow me. Once I landed, I met with intelligence officers, and we looked at all catalogues to see what possible spy object this might have been, but there was nothing similar to what I had observed, and we were unaware of any type of technology [like this] on Earth that existed."

The committee of former members of Congress appeared to be moved and highly interested to hear the testimony of the first international panel of the day, especially the riveting close encounter aerial "dogfight" described by Peruvian fighter pilot, Col. Oscar Santa-Maria.

Cong. Darlene Hooley (Dem/Oregon) closed the morning session with praise for the panel: "I want to thank our panel for being here today. This has been really interesting and your openness and what's happening in each of your countries has been a real eye-opener for the rest of us."

The second panel consisting of international experts is offering testimony about UFOs. The individuals were Antonio Huneus (Chile-U.S.), Nick Pope (U.K.), Grant Cameron (Canada), Sun Shili (People's Republic Of China) and Roberto Pinotti (Italy).

Chinese scientist Sun Shili is a retired foreign ministry official and president of the World Chinese UFO Federation. "Our federation serves as a communication platform for the global Chinese on all aspects of UFOs, including those in Mainland China, Hong Kong, Taiwan and abroad. Chinese people consider ourselves as the descendants of dragons, which are from outer space in the Chinese culture. "We call our land as the land of deities or gods and we seek the harmony between people and heaven. All of these things are very relevant with the hearing that is taking place today."

Shili told the CHD committee that he was a government diplomat and university professor, but since the 1970s, he started looking into UFOs and the mysteries of the universe.

"Everyone on this planet is looking for our roots in the universe. We have the right to know and discover. Any attempt to cover-up is unacceptable. Also statistics of the China UFO groups [of which there are about 50,000 members] show that, out of 1.3 billion people, we have close to tens of millions of people who are UFO enthusiasts."

Day 4 ended with Sen. Mike Gravel outlining a plan to get the United Nations to reexamine UFOs. Gravel said it only takes one country to make a stand and to get the United Nations to open the door again to possibly creating a new agency to look into UFOs.

"Another hearing like this one, or whether it's in the Congress, probably won't advance our goals all that much. But there's no reason why, with the various countries represented here - with the various scholars and military officers - that we wouldn't try to, within our own communities, to get them to endorse a very simple, straightforward resolution, calling upon the [U.N.] General Assembly. All we would need is one country, but I think that we have several countries from South America, and certainly, this group here might have enough influence to get their government to go on record, and to field a resolution creating an agency of the United Nations...specifically with the goal to organize a global conference - not a hearing - of the scholars and scientists that would come together and fund it - both from public and private sources - so that, within a couple of years, we could convene a conference that would command the attention of the world. I have no doubt that we could field that kind of a resolution and get it adopted. We can elevate it right to where it really belongs because it's a global issue - we could elevate it right to the General Assembly of the United Nations."

The technology panel consisted of Dr. Roger Leir, physics engineer Thomas Valone, Dr. Steven Greer and aeronautical engineer Robert Wood. During this session, Leir, a podiatrist, described the numerous surgeries he's performed with a medical team in which they removed unusual small objects from people who claimed to have experienced alien abduction.

"In my 50 years of podiatric surgical practice, I have removed literally hundreds of objects from the human foot, including paper, glass, metal and stones. All of the individuals involved in my study all presented no noted portal of entry for any of the objects that were removed. There was no visible scar formation and no interruption of the integrity of the skin, even when examination was performed with a magnifying loop. All the individuals in the study presented positive X-rays or CT Scans showing metallic or lesser dense foreign objects. In addition, by use of a radio wave frequency detector, we were able to detect that certain radio frequencies in the FM band, were being emitted from the object. All the surgeries we performed were documented with eyewitnesses, video and still photography. We find that, in all pathological reports, there is NO inflammatory reaction, there is no rejection reaction. There is nothing that we have found in material science that will produce absolutely no inflammatory reaction in the human body."

CHD organizer Stephen Bassett announced to the ex-congressional panel that a 15-minute video was about to be shown of a 77-year-old man, in very bad health, who wanted to take the opportunity to reveal a story of what happened to him while he worked for the CIA under Pres. Dwight Eisenhower in 1958.

Bassett: "In a sense, this video represents the many individuals out there who could not come before a committee like this, who want to talk, but it's difficult. The vast majority of individuals who have interacted with this issue while working for the government, going back to the 40s, took the information that they had to their grave and did not talk if they were told not to talk. This gentleman has received numerous threats from his government not to talk, but he wanted this testimony to be presented and we agreed. He has only been interviewed by two researchers who are here today, Linda Moulton Howe and Richard Dolan. It's a foregone conclusion that the CIA doesn't routinely acknowledge the identities of those who work for the agency, so we can't confirm who this man is... we can only present portions of his testimony, as he spoke with UFO historian Richard Dolan. "X" - as we'll call him here - recounted how he worked for the CIA on a special project involving the Air Force's Project Blue Book study of UFOs (which ran for about 20 years before ending in 1969)."

X: "Project Blue Book was partially a fraud. But the cases that we got didn't come from the Pentagon or CIA headquarters. My boss filled me in on Project Blue Book and what they had found so far, as far as greys and aliens and the Roswell incident."

Dolan: "How did you feel when this got dumped on?"

X: "Well, I was just kind of overwhelmed with all of this. My boss said we were going to be part of the Eisenhower push to find out about these aliens. We went to the Oval Office. President Eisenhower was there, and Nixon."

At this point, X goes on to talk about how Eisenhower was upset when he learned that there was activity going on at a base in Nevada (that would later be renamed as Area 51) that the government allegedly had no jurisdiction over. Eisenhower sent X and his boss to the base to find out what was going on there.

X described what they saw when they arrived. X: "There were different garage door openings and inside they had different saucer crafts. The first one was the Roswell craft -- it was kind of crashed up, but apparently every alien had died except for a couple. Later on we viewed the autopsy film and then the colonel said, 'What we've got in here is we're interviewing a grey alien.'"

Dolan: "How did you feel at that moment?"

X: "I thought, boy, we had no idea we were gonna see the real thing. All we saw was film. My boss was able to go in and have a partial interview. This one looked a little bit Oriental. It didn't look human as far as the skin tone. Its brain was a little bit bigger, very, very small nose and the ears were just like holes and the mouth was very small."

X and his superior went back to Washington to meet with Eisenhower and Nixon again.

X: "Also, Hoover was there. We told them about the alien and the whole situation and he was just totally shocked. He appeared for the first time to be worried. Eisenhower said, 'We've got to keep this thing completely secret.'"

Cong. Carolyn Kilpatrick appeared very moved by the testimony of the private, commercial and military pilots as well as previous panel witnesses during the week.

"All this week, I've heard some of the most intelligent, scientific and universal knowledge on the topic that I didn't know I was going to witness. Yesterday, we heard from 12 different countries who have hundreds of years of scientific intelligent information on this subject. It behooves us, as human beings, in what is known as the greatest country in the world, to participate in that discussion. To not act like something exists and then to further act like it's a joke, we do a disservice to our ancestors, to God and to the people of the world."

"I want the world and the universe to continue. And if there is something out there - and I'm not a scientist - there's a whole lot we don't know. I think it's ignorant of any people not to seek out what we need to know to continue the universe. I was convinced before this morning's panel that there probably is something out there, and I'm willing to work the rest of my life to see that, if it is, how we can enhance the universe to see that we all have a better quality of life."

On the fifth and final day of the Citizen Hearing On Disclosure in Washington, D.C., a group of pilots - private, commercial and military - and former FAA official John Callahan testified about a number of UFO encounters experienced by pilots, and how, in many cases, information about these incidents were deliberately kept from the public.

Former Canada Minister of National Defense Paul Hellyer closed the 5-day hearing. Paul Hellyer is widely known and credited for his work to unify the Canadian Armed Forces. In 2005, he made headlines by announcing that "UFOs are as real as the airplanes flying overhead." That statement made him the first cabinet-ranked individual in the G8 group of nations to say that UFOs were unequivocally real.

"Since then, I've learned a lot from many sources, including a number of the fantastic witnesses that we have heard these last five days."

Among the things Hellyer says he has learned and believes is a particular document that concluded at least four species had been visiting Earth for thousands of years: "This is my own view at this stage, as well. ... They are different species and, consequently, may have different agendas. I don't think we can say that they all have the same agenda any more than we can say that the United States, China and Russia have the same agenda. Our real interests may be similar, but as of now, our perceived interests are still quite far apart."

"My interest is in about 95 to 98 percent of full disclosure - I know of one or two things that I'm not sure should be in the public domain, at least yet. They will be someday, I'm sure. But just as children survive the idea of the tooth fairy and Santa Claus when they become adult, I think the taxpaying citizens are quite capable of accepting the new and broader reality that we live in a cosmos teeming with life of various sorts."

"The fact that some other civilizations are more advanced than we are may be humbling. But that could be a necessary step in our survival."

Several of the former members of Congress who presided over the 5-day hearings suggested they would be interested in reuniting to try and take the UFO-ET disclosure issue to the United Nations.

BOOK REVIEW

Hendrix on Hendrix - Interviews and Encounters with Jimi Hendrix, edited by Steve Roby, published by Chicago Review Press. ISBN 978-1-61374-322-5. 362pp, illus.

Rock guitar legend Jimi Hendrix claimed to have seen four different UFOs, and space people are referenced in his tracks "EXP" and "Third Stone from the Sun". This book - a must if you like Hendrix's music, of course - contains interviews with the man himself from the press of the late 60s and 1970 (the year Jimi died) most of them from obscure "counter-culture" magazines.

Interestingly, Jimi makes quite a few references to "flying saucers", especially in his later interviews: "It's just like a spaceship. If a spaceship came down if you know nothin' about it, the first thing you're going to think about is shootin' it". This is something Jimi is elsewhere disapproving of and he seems to have something specific in mind. (This quote is from 12th December 1969 - any ideas?)

THE HIDDEN UNITY and BEGINNINGS

The Hidden Unity looks at the strange phenomenon of subconscious siting of ley points, and notes that places of worship, of all religions and all ages, tend to predominate on leys. The environmental and philosophical implications of this are discussed, and the apparent necessity of worship but irrelevance of doctrine. Two ley centres are given as examples, and investigated in depth - the Shah Jehan Mosque in Woking and the Guru Nanak Sikh Temple, Scunthorpe. There is an appendix by Eileen Grimshaw on the significance of the Pagan religion to this study. Illustrated with photographs, maps and line drawings. £2 plus 30p p&p from the Amskaya address. Please make cheques payable to J. Goddard.

Beginnings is about a series of potentially useful discoveries, mainly made by Jimmy Goddard over a period of about twenty years, but having some overlap with discoveries made by others. For various reasons, the investigations are all in their early stages, and some have not been continued. They include earth energy detection, natural antigravity, subconscious siting, ley width, and the solar transition effect. There is also a chapter on cognitive dissonance - a psychological factor which seems to have been at the root of all bigotry - scientific, religious and other - down the ages. The booklet is concluded with an account of the discovery of leys by Alfred Watkins. £2 plus 30p p&p from the Amskaya address. Please make cheques payable to J. Goddard.

EARTH PEOPLE, SPACE PEOPLE

In 1961, Tony Wedd produced a manuscript Earth Men, Space Men, detailing many claims of extraterrestrial contact. It was never published, and I had thought it was lost, though it has recently been located - Tony had given it to Timothy Good. To try to make up for the loss in a much more modest size, this booklet was prepared. As well as giving details of some of the more prominent contact claims, there are articles on the history of the STAR Fellowship and some of its personalities, evidence for life in the Solar System and investigation into extraterrestrial language.
